

NORTHERN HARRIER

Coloring Page

Northern Harriers are brown and gray with a white underside and black wingtips. They also have a white patch on their tail at the base. The face of Northern Harriers are similar to an owl. Northern Harriers are found throughout North America. Their population is declining; however, they are still common. They make their homes in marshes, fields, and prairies. Northern Harriers eat small rodents and birds. The ones found in the south are permanent residents, while the ones found in the north migrate in both fall and spring.
